

Tim in KY TdF Stage 20 is 134 kilometers from Belfort north through the Voges Mountains to the ski station at Le Markstein. This is the piece of France where the place names, architecture and cuisine are more often German than French.

Rocket City Gal We had another storm front with high winds blow through last night, just as I was getting ready to make dinner. Widespread power outages from falling limbs and trees, and a power substation also had a failure affecting many. Thank goodness for the ol' Coleman camp stove. Fortunately, our power came back on about an hour later. By 10 pm, a couple of thousand customers still were without power. Looking at the power outage map, at least a couple hundred in the county are still without power. This is on top of power outages caused by strong storms 2 days earlier (and not everyone had their power restored from those storms yet!)

Rocket City Gal I made a sort of modified sous vide set-up to heat up some edemame and pork loin leftovers, and had fortunately got some yummy ravioli at Costco just an hour or so before. A nice salad and all was well. Hubby had wanted to go out somewhere for dinner. I asked if he'd checked the power outage map... if we were without power, the restaurants around us probably were too (which was the case.) I convinced him he wasn't going to starve to death, and that we could do just fine with the camp stove.

07:27:25 am

Rocket City Gal On top of the 5" of rain that were in the rain gauge yesterday morning, we got another 2 inches, part of which was from the rest of the morning storms and part of which was from the evening deluge and blow.â€ Fortunately I think this cycle of storms is finally over.â€ With it being humid with highs in the mid 80s to low 90s, I hope everyone who's still in the dark has their power restored soon.â€ Some businesses were damaged by winds, and at least two people were temporarily trapped in their cars by falling trees (fortunately they were rescued quickly, no injuries.)

I sat on a bench near the area where riders cross-tie their horses to tack up and she went down the barn aisle to her horse's stall. Horse not there. She went and looked at all the turn-outs, horse not there either. As I sensed her pacing back and forth in panic, I looked up from my email to spy a horse in the hay storage stall. CAUGHT! 08:19:21 am

Rocket City Gal The kitty in the picture with the catnip is our miracle "freezer cat." In the early days of COVID one of my COVID activities was clearing out some old stuff in the freezer including stuff in the pull-out wire bins in the very bottom of our side-by-side fridge/freezer. Another COVID activity was fostering our first mama cat with kittens. At this point the three kittens were around 2 months old. One afternoon this one apparently darted in to the bottom basket (which now had room) while I was rummaging for something to thaw out / make for dinner on the upper shelves. She was fast, and I did not see her. After realizing the other 2 kittens and mama cat were around but she wasn't, we spent all afternoon and evening looking EVERYWHERE in the house for her. I'd even looked in the fridge, but didn't think to look in the freezer. We even looked outside, although I didn't see how she could've gotten out (she was fast, and I did open the front door to get a package...) We called and called, shook the food container, jingled toys, nothing. Went through the cabinets, pulled out furniture, pulled out the fridge/washer/dryer... nothing. I was bereft. Where could the kitten be? I got up in the middle of the night, walking through the house calling for her. Nothing. Then at 5 am I went to the kitchen and heard a muffled meow. I looked in cabinets, the fridge, and finally opened the freezer -- whereupon she hopped out like nothing had happened. She had been in there for around 14 hours or so. Never meowed or made a peep until 5 am. I scooped her up, crying, and put her under my shirt to warm her up. Her foot pads and ears were cold, but not frostbitten. I think her high body temp warmed up the space between that basket and the one above it like a little snow cave or ice cave. She still likes enclosed, dark places.

Rocket City Gal How could we NOT adopt that one? We knew we were going to adopt two, and knew we wanted the boy kitten. Choosing between the girl kittens and mama cat (she was very sweet and good) was hard. The freezer thing sealed the deal. We figure she probably burned up a few of her nine lives with that one. She loves to hop into the pantry in the mornings when my husband gets coffee supplies. If I can't find her I look there first, and she's usually been shut in there. She's sneaky and she's fast.

Trish in MA I've had baby locks on all our bi-fold doors for 40+ years. We had a cat that would open the doors. None of our other kitties would go for the doors, until now. Luckily, I just routinely flip the baby locks so rarely does Poncho get himself locked in.

Katie Lane I somewhat ashamedly eventually did tell one of the staff at the humane society the freezer cat tale of woe. Whereupon he related the story of a cat that was very sick that they had in their facility that they had been trying to save â€” it had a high fever and was doing poorly despite fluids and antibiotics and such. Â Eventually, the cat passed away. Â They put his lifeless body in the freezer, which is what they do when that happens. The next morning someone went to get supplies out of the freezer, and the cat was standing inside the freezer at the door waiting to be let out. Apparently it wasnâ€™t quite dead, and the freezer helped bring down its high fever and revived him somehow. The cat was henceforth known as Lazarus, made a full recovery and found his forever home.

mmcally There is a huge Thibaut Pinot supporters group 2k from the top of the Petit Ballon to cheer him on in his last TdF mountain stage. The group, known as the Collectif Ultras Pinot, was born years ago out of the idea of the PSG Ultras. Thibaut, like myself I might add, is a big Paris Saint Germain football supporter and when at the Parc des Princes is found cheering and singing in the supporters section. The FDJ jersey this year used the traditional PSG Hechter motif to honor Thibaut and his ties to the football club. Their videos last night and today on the mountain have been quite entertaining. A little football meets cycling.

BusterSci Better yet, Katie. Ask it to compose a 300 word essay about the Vosges. We'll call it MonsGPT.

07-22-2023
10:32:38 am

Katie Lane Chat in French means cat, but when pronounced "cha" it means "female cat." If you say the full word (with the t), then it means "female cat" or "kitty." So reading the name ChatGPT comes across as "chat j'ai p" meaning: Cat I have farted.

John The Vosges, a picturesque mountain range in northeastern France, is a hidden gem that holds a captivating allure for nature enthusiasts, history buffs, and adventure seekers alike. Stretching approximately 150 miles along the border between Alsace and Lorraine, the Vosges showcase a diverse landscape of rolling hills, dense forests, and awe-inspiring peaks, making it a truly remarkable destination. One of the defining features of the Vosges is its rich biodiversity. The region is home to a myriad of plant and animal species, including rare orchids, lynxes, and chamois. As visitors explore the numerous nature reserves and national parks, they will be rewarded with the chance to encounter this fascinating array of wildlife in their natural habitats. The Vosges also boast pristine lakes and waterfalls, creating a tranquil environment that encourages relaxation and contemplation. For outdoor enthusiasts, the Vosges offer a plethora of activities to indulge in.

10:37:23 am

Hiking trails crisscross the mountains, catering to all levels of fitness and experience. Whether it's a leisurely stroll through the valleys or a challenging trek to conquer the highest peaks, every journey promises breathtaking vistas and a sense of accomplishment. During the winter months, the Vosges transform into a winter wonderland, attracting skiers and snowboarders to its well-groomed slopes and charming alpine villages. Beyond its natural beauty, the Vosges bear the imprints of a rich historical heritage. Numerous castles and fortified towns are scattered throughout the region, narrating stories of ancient battles and medieval splendor. The Route des Cr ates, a scenic mountain road that traverses the highest ridges of the Vosges, offers not only stunning views but also insights into the area's World War I history, with preserved trenches and monuments along the way.
